It's very sad. Just learn about her death 1,5 year after. She was my favorite painter. I wanted know is she was going to be on Fall Art Tour in 2023. Rest in Piece , Audrey. You were fantastic painter and also a gifted story teller.

“ If I am so sorry to hear this. A visit to Audrey's farmhouse and studio was always a main reason for my at least annual trip to the driftless area. I treasure those times and the pieces of her memorable art that I enjoy every day. Is such a big loss. My condolences to the family.

“ Audrey was legendary when I moved my little gallery to Mineral Point but I didn't meet her for years because our events always conflicted. Finally one year before Fall Art Tour I called and said I needed to meet her and could I come out outside of your hours and she said to come the Tuesday after because before the event she wouldn't be ready and on Monday she intended to sleep. So I went out on Tuesday and met her and got a tour of her gorgeous little house. We went to the studio and she already knew that I dabbled in linoleum block printing and I mentioned that I'd always wished to learn to carve in wood. She got out her two styles of tools and tried them in my hands and recommended which style would be best for me then rummaged through paperwork and found me a copy of the catalog and circled the ones I should order. I've made it a point to find time to attend every event that I could and we hosted her at the 210 building where I got to know her even better. One time I went to pick up a print I'd ordered and we drank tea and I left with a jar of jam. Just before Fall Art Tour, I took her out a frame that I wasn't using and we had a lovely although short visit. She insisted that I visit again in the spring because that's just the sort of thing she would do.
